

Logitech Expands Apple Offerings

Written by Marco Attard
12 December 2012

Mac-using customers should not feel left out by Logitech-- the company reveals the Bluetooth Easy-Switch Keyboard and Rechargeable Trackpad for Mac, all compatible with ever-so-stylish stylish Apple devices.

The Easy-Switch keyboard is near-identical to Logitech's own K810 Bluetooth keyboard. It pairs up with up to 3 Bluetooth-enabled devices and allows switching through the press of a button. It also has backlit keys, Mac-specific buttons and aluminium construction fitting with the Apple look.

Meanwhile the Rechargeable Trackpad is the Logitech take on the Apple Magic TrackPad. It offers similar functionality (complete with multi-finger gesture support) but recharges via USB instead of depending on AA batteries.

Both devices will be available in Europe from January 2013.

Go New Logitech Products for Your Apple Devices