

Razer launches Ferox, a pocket sized twin-speaker set the company describes as a modern day boombox for gamers.

The speakers offer omni-directional sound through strategically positioned 30mm neodymium magnet drivers. Auto-expanding resonance chambers produce a subwoofer-style strong bass, while digital amplification enhances power efficiency while lowering distortion levels.

Loudspeaker output stands at 2x 3W, with 150Hz-20KHz frequency response. Inputs come through 3.5mm audio jack and USB.

Powering all is a rechargeable battery pack offering 12 hours' battery life.
