Patriot ships its faster-charging FUEL iON family, its reinvention of mobile wireless charging.

Everyone likes wireless charging (eliminates cords and makes charging as easy as setting your phone down) but the lack of charging speed has been a real down-side.

Now FUEL iON tackles that problem. Patriot says FUEL iON delivers speeds as fast as corded charging, and definitely more speed than induction charging. Because it isn't using induction charging...

FUEL iON uses the power of magnets to charge mobile devices. "Induction charging was a great step, but it failed to deliver when it came to charging speed," says Mike Chang, Product Manager at Patriot.

FUEL iON is a full power solution that includes a protective phone case and charging base. FUEL iON features a magnetic power transfer pad that uses neodymium magnet technology to automatically secure the phone when it contacts the charging base.

Once the FUEL iON case is securely docked, the user can view the phone in vertical or horizontal orientation. The FUEL iON iPhone case kit features a slide in protective cover with a unique hold- in-place slider that offers easy access to buttons and ports.

FUEL iON offers multiple charging bases, phone cases, and car chargers to suit different user's different lifestyles.

Patriot is famous for its memory modules and flash memory and extends its experience in winning a place in retail in consumer IT to the growing mobile accessory industry with its FUEL range. (FUEL iON being the latest from its research department).
