Samsung prepares for the imminent Windows 8 launch with a mobile and non-mobile PC lineup-- one complete with tablets, ultrabooks, notebooks and All-in-One (AIO) PCs.

The company also has what it calls "Smart PCs," a device category better known laptop-tablet hybrids. These include the ATIV Smart PC 500T (available with or without keyboard) and the higher-end ATIC Smart PC Pro 700T, both running on Windows 8.

Samsung gives no mention of Windows RT tablets as yet.

Meanwhile the Series 5 Ultra Touch is the first Samsung Ultrabook with a touchscreen handling 10-finger input. It joins the Series 9 Premium ultrabook and the aluminium-clad Series 7 notebook.

Samsung Windows 8 PCs come in 2 varieties-- the Series 7 (with touch- and gesture-based input) and the Series 5 "kitchen PC."
