

Consumer Network Storage Market booming

Written by Bob Snyder

17 April 2008

With consumer use of digital video and digital music on the rise, and significant penetration of home networks by broadband users, consumers are increasingly considering network storage, reports In-Stat

The consumer network storage market grew at a faster pace in 2007 than 2006 and more than doubled in the last two years.

Vendors had been waiting for consumers to catch up with their network storage offerings, but that has begun to change.

Go In-Stat :