A recent set of job listings confirm Apple plans to open a flagship Store in Brussels, Belgium-- a first for the country, if one still to be confirmed by the iPhone maker.

The retail-specific job listings total 13, and include a Manager, Expert and Genius, among others.

As mentioned earlier the actual location of the store is unknown, but according to Belgium-iPhone it will be in "The Golden Fleece," a complex currently under construction at Toison d'Or (Golden Fleece), Brussels. Apparently the Apple Store is located on the right-hand side of the building, spans around 1500 square metres and includes a mezzanine.

Following the first store's opening-- set for around Q3 2015, or once the complex is complete-- Apple has two other Belgian store openings in the works, specifically in Ghent and Antwerp. Such news should be a boon for Belgian Apple fans, but less so for the Apple resellers currently operating in the country, including Cami, Easy-M, Fnac and Media Markt.
