

Saturn Tries Automated Retail

Written by Marco Attard
26 January 2011

Düsseldorf airport's departure terminal C houses Saturn's first automated retail shop, Saturn Xpress.

The kiosk carries over 50 products aimed at travellers-- headphones, recharging cables, mp3 players, digital cameras-- from top brand names.

Customers carry out purchases with a touch screen interface, and credit cards handle payments.

Saturn plans a test run of 11 Xpress kiosks in busy areas through Germany-- including airports and train stations.

Go Saturn Tests Use of Automated Retail Shops