

Google Opens Chrome Store Borders

Written by Marco Attard
05 October 2011

Google opens the Chrome Web Store to countries beyond the USA, with users from 24 countries now able to buy or sell apps through the Chrome browser.

The list of participant countries includes Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Hong Kong, India, Israel, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The recently launched in-app payments remain US-only, for now.

With the online app store now internationally available, will Google make Chromebooks available to further European markets? It would link with Google's "Chromezone" steps into physical retail, after all.

Go Chrome Web Store Expands its Borders

Go Google Softly Steps into Physical Retail