

Apple Confirms 21 March Event

Written by Marco Attard
16 March 2016

Apple confirms earlier rumours as it announces 21 March 2016 as the date for its next event--one revealed through rose gold-hued press invites bearing the cryptic slogan "let us loop you in."

The event takes place at the Apple 1 Infinite Loop campus in Cupertino, California. It is expected to involve a number of devices, such as a smaller 9.7-inch iPad Pro, a 4-inch iPhone (dubbed the SE) and a variety of new Apple Watch band options (rumours suggest a nylon band a Space Black Milanese Loop). Some sources also say Mac refreshes will make a showing, although the grapevine gives no fruit on that regard as yet.

Worthy of note is the fact the event takes place just one day ahead of Apple's courtroom clash with the US government over whether it should help the FBI unlock the iPhone owned by one of the San Bernardino terrorists -- and as such the company will surely take the opportunity to educate customers on its stand on the matter.

Like past events a live stream will be available on both Apple website and Apple TV.

Go Apple Confirms March iPhone/iPad Event Will Occur Day Before FBI Hearing \(BuzzFeed News\)