

Corsair Buys Origin PC

Written by Alice Marshall
31 July 2019

PC gaming peripheral and enthusiast component maker Corsair buys into custom PC construction with Origin PC, the US-based boutique PC maker. Financial details of the deal are not available.

“Corsair is a fantastic partner to help take Origin PC forward, known for creating quality, high-performance products that fully align with Origin PC,” the company says. “With a complete range of enthusiast PC products, Origin PC and Corsair are uniquely placed to create amazing new systems that make the experience of owning a personalised custom gaming PC better than ever.”

Origin PC offers a range of high-performance PCs, including gaming PCs, workstations and gaming laptops. Post-acquisition it will remain a separate brand within Corsair, although one can safely assume Origin PC machines will be using Corsair components (such as Hydro X cooling systems) moving forward.

Furthermore, Corsair will continue selling own branded systems, such as the Vengeance PC, Corsair One and Corsair One Pro.

Go Corsair Acquires Origin PC