

Twelve South Candle Promises to "Inspire"

Written by Marco Attard
25 October 2017

Twelve South follows on last year's "New Mac" candle with a more inspirational "Mac Candle No. 2"-- the "Inspire" candle promises to, well, inspire with "strong notes of bergamot, lemon and tarragon."

The iDevice accessory maker claims the collection of scents will "clear your mind of clutter and stimulate creativity," which might make it ideal for customers using their Macs for creative tasks such as graphic design.

Described as a "small tribute to the Mac," the candle comes complete with a Steve Jobs quote-- "In the act of making something with a great deal of care and love, something is transmitted there, and it's a way of expressing... our deep appreciation."

As for actual candle details, it is made from soy wax and comes inside a redesigned white cylinder. It does not smell the same as last year's candle (which featured the scent of freshly unboxed Mac), and offers around 60 hours of light.

Go Twelve South Inspire Candle